The Research Machine Suspends For A Day

Hundreds of teachers, researchers and advanced students hung up their laboratory aprons at 30 university campuses Tuesday to protest the military involvement in higher education.

Another group by way of intellectual picketing of the protesters worked a double shift in their laboratories.

The one-day work stoppage was organized by the Union of Concerned Scientists founded at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The strikers, for the most part, met on their campuses to lecture or read dialogues to one another on the extent to which their brainpower should be hired exclusively for the national defense effort.

The immediate cause for the M.I.T. faculty unrest is the selection of the Cambridge, Mass., area as one site for the highly debated "thin" anti-ballistic missile system. Even lacking this stimulus, it is readily apparent the research controversy would break out.

Government contracts for university research are at least as old as World War I, but did not blossom into today's full blooming until "Hap" Arnold, the Air Force chief of staff during World War II, publicly informed his brother officers in arms that the college laboratory is miles ahead of the military ordnance departments when it comes to inventiveness and scientific know-how.

The popularity of the Air Force and the personal charm of General Arnold ran roughshod over the old line military who had been brought up to believe that all mechanical ingenuity begins and ends at Wright Field, the Aberdeen Proving Grounds, or the Navy's Ordnance and Engineering Bureaus.

Arnold's highly successful scientific venture continued in two forms.

One is the "think tank," a corporation which for a fee works out all kinds of problems sent to it by the military.

The other is the direct contract from the Pentagon to a college for study of a specific question.

This postwar development is a multi-billion dollar business and for many universities the military research contracts represent, as in the case of M.I.T., half of their annual budgets.

M.I.T. and Johns Hopkins conduct missile design centers; Cornell is devising more effective bombs for Viet Nam; Princeton is breaking codes and running conventions for the Central Intelligence Agency; the University of Michigan is working on counterinsurgency and is a leader in photo reconnaissance; Pennsylvania and 50 others are involved in chemical, germ and biological procedures.

This commitment is a ready made target for pacifists, student militants and other crackpots.

More importantly, though, it is stirring segments in many faculties to echo Senator Fulbright's comment of a year ago that the predominance in military research is "a surrender of independence, the neglect of teaching, and the distortion of scholarship."

The faculty rebels carry the words of that Rhodes scholar one step further. They object to the secrecy cloak enveloping the research, their point being that the fruits of research should be multi-purpose, not single minded.

Quite possibly some of the student unrest at Berkeley, the youthful grandpappy of U.S. campus turmoil takes a cue from this faculty disquietude. The University of California operates a laboratory at Berkeley to design and build H-bomb prototypes.

Even the harshest critics of Pentagon contracted research do not advocate digging a trench around the ivy clad halls.

Some of its work is in the humanities and because of its declassified nature is available for many purposes.

Secondly, the faculty disputes the pure military research in degree rather than in substance. What is urged is lesser dependence, not full independence, from the military budget.

President Nixon made a bow recently in the direction of the faculty rebels.

He named Dr. Lee A. DuBridge, president of the California Institute of Technology (the West coast's answer to M.I.T.), to be his scientific advisor.

Caltech has avoided secret projects as being inconsonant to its education objectives.

In Nixon's directive on the appointment, Dr. DuBridge is to create "a major scientific research effort, particularly in the field of peaceful research."

Since even a dress pattern can find a military application, the President's distinction between peaceful and military research will be hard to follow.

He did take one step toward establishing the borderline shortly after making the DuBridge appointment.

He restored $10 of the $40 million which the Johnson Administration had slashed from the National Science Foundation's budget.

Ten million doesn't buy much research, peaceful or otherwise, today, but at least the first gesture has been made.

Giving Up

College administrators across the country looked to Columbia University for leadership in drawing the line against disorder on campuses.

Instead, they found vacillation and retreat, and now has come cancellation of all university punishment against students involved in the riotous demonstrations last April and May.

That includes a ruling that all 16 suspended students, including Mark Rudd, the self-styled revolutionist, are eligible to apply for immediate readmission.

Students for a Democratic Society welcomed the "declaration of amnesty" by barging the next day into an alumni meeting on restructuring the university government, and noisily disrupting it for 15 minutes.

It is easy to see a major reason that applications for Columbia's next freshman class have dropped 21 percent from last year's while applications have continued to rise at other universities.

EDITOR'S MAILBAG

Editor,

The Herald-Press:

FLAG SIT-DOWN

Couldn't help seeing your article in The Herald-Press last week about how "Religious Dissenters" irked one of the local public servants. I'd like to exert one of my prerogatives provided under the constitution of this blessed, wonderful country of ours and remind you of the reason for the exodus from Europe to the United States was to gain religious freedom from bigotry.

In this article David Agay was the offended party because two boys refused to stand at the rendering of the Star Spangled Banner at the beginning of a game. I understand that the religions sect of Jehovah's Witnesses advocates that they give their allegiance to God and God alone, therefore recognizing no other government than that of God!

Pray, Mr. Agay, is it a crime to honor the Creator rather than the creation?

God gave us, through the accident of our births, the opportunity to live in this great country, where, by His grace, we may live according to our consciences dictates. You by yours and these lads by theirs.

I'm sure that if the choice of religion had been his that was being maligned he would at least feel that his religious rights were being denied him. The fact that your paper is responsible for making such an issue of this incident shows the extent of prejudice and bigotry that is serving to destroying mankind today.

I thank God that I'm an American. Being one obligates me to uphold the constitutional rights of my fellow men, not degrade them, and my country.

God has upheld America down through the years because she has always defended liberty and freedom of the individual. Intolerances all other attitudes of the like are a decaying influence, not only to the individual, but the country and the world.

A notorious man once gave us a beautiful truth to live our lives by. He said, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." Jesus, The Christ. He also admonished us to love our neighbor as we do ourselves. Yes indeed, "by their example ye shall know them!"

THE AVERAGE AMERICAN CONSTITUENT

(Ed. note. It is not our policy to accept anonymous letters for publication, but since this self styled average American takes a poke at one of our national anthems, we would ask since when has courtesy gone out of style? If the fans for opposing teams stand when the contesting alma mater songs are aired, what's so oppressive to a person standing at attention when the national anthem of the country that makes his religious pursuit possible is played?)

DR. COLEMAN

..And Speaking Of Your Health

Our six-year-old daughter, the eldest of three, has had some kind of brain damage, probably a birth defect. Although she is slow in learning she is well coordinated and gets along remarkably well with other children. She is warm, adorable and loving. I am aware that some parents of her playmates do not encourage having our child in their group, almost as if so-called mental retardation is contagious. Dr. Coleman

Perhaps you can enlighten people and free them of this misconception. Mr. and Mrs. L.E.O. Ohio Dear Mr. and Mrs. O.: The age of enlightenment about mental retardation has not yet reached everyone, but the horizons are widening daily. It is now acknowledged that mental retardation is no stigma or shame. The fortunate parents of completely normal, healthy children without the handicap of "slowness" are now playing an active role with their kindness and understanding in helping restore "limited children" to their rightful world of happiness.

Mental retardation at birth is not a disease transmitted by bacteria. It now can be remedied in a great measure if all forces work together to give these children their greatest chances for emotional growth. No, the condition is not contagious and cannot affect the growth of playmates. Your daughter's warmth can help her ingratiate herself and become part of a group which can then benefit from her rather than pay a penalty by accepting her. An open discussion with the parents of your daughter's friends may give them a better insight into how their own children can be taught the dividends of kindness.

How high should the cholesterol be in the blood before it is considered dangerous?

Mr. V. H., Missouri Dear Mr. H.: Numbers themselves can only be confusing and may induce fear where it should not exist. A great many other factors besides the amount of cholesterol in the bloodstream determine health and disease. Some people with a very great amount may be in better general health than those with a small quantity, depending on the condition of the other organs of the body.

The normal amount of cholesterol ranges between 150 and 250 milligrams in 100 c.c. of blood. Since normal variations of this amount do occur, patients must not base their health on the number alone. It is for this reason that physicians so thoroughly discuss the meaning of cholesterol, blood pressure and sugar "numbers" in relationship to general health.

There are definite diets that seem to reduce the amount of cholesterol in the blood. This is now considered most important in the prevention of narrowing of the arteries to the heart, the lungs and the brain. An additional hopeful thought is that a drug will soon be available to prevent the formation of cholesterol even with uncontrolled diets.

What is a horseshoe kidney? Is it dangerous and can it affect a normal life?

Mrs. B.H., Massachusetts Dear Mrs. H.: This unusual condition occurs in about one in every five hundred people. In the absence of any infection people who have this unusually shaped kidney are as healthy and live as long as those with two kidneys.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH: Razor blades are particularly dangerous when used to pare corns, bunions and callouses.

Dr. Coleman welcomes letters from readers, and, while he cannot undertake to answer each one, he will use questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Coleman in care of this newspaper.

Opening lead — queen of diamonds.

Counting a hand may be a trifle laborious at times, but it is not really difficult if you put your mind to it.

South is in seven spades and his only possible loser is a heart. The grand slam would be easy enough to make if South knew which opponent had the queen, because all he would have to do would be to finesse in the right direction.

But since he doesn't see the queen, he must set out to assemble every bit of information he can to assist him in solving the crucial two-way guess.

After winning the diamond lead with the ace and drawing two rounds of trumps, declarer cashes the ace of clubs and ruffs a club. A diamond to the king is followed by another club ruff, and then, after trumping a diamond in dummy, the last club is ruffed.

The purpose of these plays is to compel the defenders to reveal their distribution. Thus, in the actual case, it becomes clear that West started with precisely one spade, six diamonds and four clubs. This knowledge is obtained as each defender follows or fails to follow suit.

South therefore learns that West was dealt two hearts, neither more or less, and East consequently five hearts.

This leads to the logical conclusion that East, who started with five hearts, is more likely to have the queen than West, who started with two hearts. As a matter of fact, the mathematical odds are 5 to 2 that East has the queen of hearts!

Accordingly, South leads the jack of hearts to the king and finessses the ten on the way back. As it happens, the finesse works and the grand slam is made.

Of course, declarer cannot be sure he will succeed — heavy favorites sometimes lose — but, as usual, he is best advised to follow the odds.

Try And Stop Me

A phlegmatic man, not given to flights of fancy, startled his fellow-workers by informing them that on four successive mornings he had encountered an honest-to-goodness ghost at the corner of Fifty-Second and Madison Avenue. "Sure, sure," scoffed the legal eagle of the establishment, "but how come nobody else sees this ghost of yours?"

The phlegmatic one answered simply, "He lends them money."

He Often Decides Who's Freed

Bovo Defends Present Practice As Best Method

EDITOR'S NOTE: Bonding of arrested persons is under criticism because some have been accused of committing other crimes while free on bail. This installment in a series of articles tells a bondsman's point of view.

By RAY SMITANKA
Staff Writer

It often is the bondsman, not the judge, who determines if accused persons shall be freed on bail.

Except for the few crimes in which a judge denies bail, it's up to the bondsman to decide if a defendant is worth the risk.

"There are just some people I wouldn't touch with a 10-foot pole," says Frank Bovo, one of the Twin Cities' principal bondsmen.

"After all, my livelihood is dependent on whether a man shows for trial, so I have to be careful who I bail."

BAIL FOR FEE

A bondsman is not an officer of the court. He is a businessman who puts up bail for arrested persons. In return he collects a fee—10 per cent of the total of the bond in Michigan. If the defendant doesn't show for a court appearance, the bondsman can lose the amount of bail.

"You make a lot of mistakes in this business," he says. "Last year I made about 35 of them, and had to spend quite a bit of time chasing those mistakes all over the country."

The services of the bondsman are sought after by defendants, after arrest that according to Berrien Prosecuting Attorney Ronald Taylor. "Many persons will give no thought to getting a lawyer, but they can't get to the bondsman fast enough."

Bovo says he wants information on a client before agreeing to post bond.

"I want to determine what sort of risk the man is going to be, I want to find out how close are his ties to the community and the pressures that might cause him to flee. For example, how many relatives and friends does he have living here, does he have a good job here, how long has he lived here and so on."

CAN LOSE BAIL

Once Bovo posts a man's bond he becomes responsible for his appearance in court and stands to lose the bail if he does not appear. He does have some leverage, however, for at any time he feels the man is about to jump bail, the bond can be withdrawn and the defendant jailed.

A mistake by Bovo can be costly. Although he is given a grace period many times to find a man who has failed to appear for trial, he still has to pay expenses incurred in finding him.

He estimated that a recent case of a man jumping a $6,000 bond cost him $1,700. Bovo managed to prevent forfeiture of the bond by finding the defendant, in a search that finally ended in California.

"How fast I go after a man naturally depends on the size of (See back page, sec. 1, col. 8)

Benton Gets Grant To Plan Park

$2,500 For St. Joe River Recreation Area

A $2,500 grant has been awarded Benton township for preliminary engineering work at its 60-acre riverfront park.

The grant was authorized by the waterways commission of the state Natural Resources department during its meeting Feb. 24.

Township supervisor Ray Wilder said the money would pay half of a $5,000 project for engineering studies along the river portion of the park.

"We'll be able to get sizable amounts of state monies for developing the water area because of the cooperative program with the state," Wilder said. "We are also working with the state recreation branches for developing the other part of the park."

Wilder said he expected some work from the development to be done by fall. Included in tentative plans are boat launching ramps and marina facilities.

Notification of the grant was sent to State Sen. Charles O. Zollar by Keith Wilson, director of the Natural Resources department. The letter said the study was expected to start in 15-30 days.

Berrien Legal Aid Staff Cut

A cut in federal funds for operation of Berrien County Legal Services office has forced a reduction in staff personnel, according to Atty. Edward M. Yampolsky, director.

Because two fulltime clerks and one part-time employee have been lost as result of the budget cut, he announced the office will be closed to the public on Wednesdays so the staff can catch up on a current backlog of cases.

The legal services office is located in a county owned building adjacent to the jail that formerly was occupied by the County Extension Service office.

Yampolsky said the federal grant for his office was trimmed from $73,000 to $50,900 for the current budget year starting Feb. 1.

In addition to the loss of the clerical assistants, the cut will also mean the program under which law students assisted with the work of the office will have to be dropped, according to the director.

The staff now includes Atty. Yampolsky and Maurice Weber and two clerks.

ST. JOSEPH, MICH., THURSDAY, MARCH 6, 1969

COLOMA STARTING QUEEN PARADE SATURDAY

The first of 30 some area blossom queens will be chosen Saturday night as the 37th annual Blossom Festival gains momentum.

Miss Coloma of 1969 will be selected Saturday night from a field of 40 contestants. The Coloma pageant using the theme, "Babes in Toyland," will get under way at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium rather than gymnasium as previously announced.

Mrs. Charles Miller, co-chairman of the central queens committee said the queens will get ready for the Miss Blossomtime contest on April 28 at the Statler-Hilton Inn this year rather than the Vincent hotel. She said the judges conference and the meeting place for the motorcade for the Blessing of the Blossoms will also be at the Statler.

Another change this year is the site of the "Fashions Fit for a Queen" show, the Blossomtime Concert and the Grand Floral Ball will all be held at Shadowland ballroom. This will enable the same but more elaborate decorations to be used for all three events.

The communities of Union Pier and Galien have not yet confirmed whether or not they will hold local queen contests.

Other contest dates are as follows: March 12, Niles; March 14, Benton Harbor; March 17, Baroda; March 21, St. Joseph and Fennville; March 22, Cassopolis, Lawrence, Mattawan, New Troy; March 29, Bloomingdale, Dowagiac, Hartford, New Buffalo, South Haven; March 31, Bridgman; April 5, Eau Claire, Lawton, Sawyer; April 8, Paw Paw, Watervliet;

PAW PAW, LAWTON SEEK SCHOOL MERGER

Watervliet Will Seek Extra 3 Mills April 7

WATERVLLET — Watervliet school district officials today announced a special election April 7 on a three-mill tax hike. They reported that the deadline to register for the election is 5 p.m. tomorrow.

School Superintendent Richard Rogers said the three mills would run for two years, bringing in $54,000 a year to help offset rising costs and a deficit budget.

According to Rogers, the board of education and school administrators chose not to announce the election until the date had been cleared with the Berrien county election commission and a similar commission in Van Buren county. The Watervliet school district includes a portion of Van Buren. Rogers said authorization was received about a week ago.

Rogers said the three mills would be added to an existing 12-mill voted levy which expires next December. He said the 12 mills has not been enough to meet rising costs and salaries, adding that the current budget of $912,212 is about $35,000 in the red.

Stating that this situation cannot continue, Rogers added that the same educational program offered this year cannot prevail next year, unless additional revenue is found.

The district now operates on 10 allocated mills, 12 voted mills and a total of 8.13 mills for three debt retirement accounts, Rogers said. The total is 30.13 mills.

Joint Board Meeting Set Tonight

Discuss Plans For Possible Vote On Issue

PAW PAW — Paw Paw and Lawton school boards will hold a joint meeting tonight to discuss a possible election on merger of the two school districts.

Both boards met separately last night and unanimously agreed to a proposal to merge the two districts. Paw Paw plans to submit a petition to intermediate superintendent Elmer Van Dyke today asking for the intermediate district to set an election date.

Voters turned down a three-way merger between Paw Paw, Lawton and Mattawan school districts early in 1968 by an almost 2-1 margin.

At that time, voters went to the polls in near record numbers to vote down the proposed merger. The voting in the three districts was: Paw Paw, Paw, 418 yes, 977 no; Lawton, 261 yes, 380 no; Mattawan, 235 yes, 566 no.

According to the standards now being set by state education specialists, many school districts are too small to serve the students properly. For this reason, the Paw Paw board feels that merger with the Lawton district would overcome many of the problems of both districts. Superintendent of schools Albert Kimmel said.

DISCUSS PLANS — The purpose of tonight's meeting will be to discuss plans for setting up an election and possible curriculum changes which could result if the school districts merge before fall.

At its meeting last night, the Paw Paw board also heard an evaluation of the federally-funded Title III program being used in the Paw Paw schools which was given by Gilbert Mazer of Western Michigan university. Mazer told the board that he felt the courses being used in the program, entitled "Improving Self-Concept," were beneficial to the parents as well as to the students. He said that the self-teaching aspects of the program and the field trips which students held at the Van Buren County Youth Camp were also helpful to the program.

The program is for students of average or above-average intelligence who have not achieved up to their grade level. Kimmel told the board that due to the work of the Title III program, many of the school system's under-achieving students could now be integrated back into the regular school program.

The board also discussed curriculum for the fall term as it would pertain to Paw Paw students. Board members and department heads agreed that the courses of study could be adjusted if the Lawton and Paw Paw districts merge.

The board accepted the resignation of Mrs. Joyce Ranthum, elementary teacher at the Black River school. Her resignation will become effective at the end of the year. In her letter of resignation, she told the board that she and her husband are planning to leave the Paw Paw area.

State Drivers Losing Licenses At Record Clip

LANSGING (AP)—Drivers' license suspensions for drunken driving increased more than 73 percent in 1968, Secretary of State James Hare reports.

Figures reported by Hare's office list 12,194 drivers suspended in 1968, compared with 7,022 in 1967. The increase was attributed to the implied consent law, in effect about a year.

State Collars Weesaw On Pollution Of River

NEW TROY — The Michigan Water Resources commission has instructed the Weesaw township board to hire an engineer to find a solution to what the commission said are improper sewage discharges into the New Troy storm drain which leads to the Galien river.

Weesaw township supervisor Allen Boyd read a letter from the WRC to the board last night. The WRC said it had observed and sampled the drain during a sanitary survey last fall and found improper discharge in the drain. The drain originates in New Troy and runs to the Galien river.

In the letter the WRC said the drain is supposed to be used only as a storm drain, but that some residents are hooked up to the drain and discharging sewage instead of having septic tanks. The WRC said the township should hire an engineer and decide what feasible solution can be found. Boyd said the Berrien county health department will furnish the township a list of engineers from which the township can select an engineer.

OTHER BUSINESS

In other business, the board adopted public act 217 of the state of Michigan 1968. The adoption of the act will allow the township to take legal proceedings for the removal of unsafe buildings. The board voted to contact a lawyer regarding a vacant two-story store on the corner of Maple and Glendora roads in Glendora, which has been declared unsafe by the township building inspector. The building is owned by Ola Vance of California. Three residents appeared before the board to complain the building has no flooring on the first floor and there is water standing in the basement.

The board instructed building inspector William Bartholomew to send registered letters informing residents who are violating the junk car ordinance. Frank Sheldon of Three Oaks was hired to audit the treasurer's books.

BUY FIRE HOSE

The board voted to purchase 100 feet of 2½ inch hose and 250 feet of 1½ inch hose as requested by firemen and took under study a request to purchase a new stretcher for the emergency unit at a cost of $350. The board also voted to

New Zoning Movement In Township

Petitions Slated At South Haven

SOUTH HAVEN — A new movement appears to be under way to bring a zoning ordinance up for approval in South Haven township.

Ralph Gaines stood up before members of the township board last night and asked what had to be done to have a zoning ordinance prepared and made law for the township. He said he knew that such an ordinance was defeated by voters three times in the past but pointed out that the need for zoning seems to be increasing as more and more people move into the township.

Gaines' questions caused a flurry of discussion among some of the residents attending the meeting who quickly took their old battle positions, either for or against the zoning proposal, and proceeded to argue their cases out to the last point. Township Clerk Herbert Lang finally informed Gaines that the board would be willing to proceed with the appointment of a zoning board to prepare such an ordinance if enough township citizens would petition the board to do so.

Lang noted that with so much feeling for and against the ordinance in the township, the board was in no position to act on its own to adopt zoning, but would have to place the question on a ballot for approval by electors.

SEEKS VOLUNTEERS

Gaines indicated that he would be willing to circulate a petition and asked for volunteers to work with him. He was informed that he would need the signatures of 8 percent of the registered township voters, or about 104 names to have a valid petition.

Supervisor Richard Bus said he felt it was going to be very important for the township to adopt a zoning ordinance soon if it intends to become involved with the city of South Haven in a pact for extension of sewer and water services.

Bus said the city may be willing to work out an extension agreement but that the township would have to be able to exercise some controls on future development in these areas, which would undoubtedly mean zoning. "If these people want sewer and water, they are going to have to get out and work for this," Bus said about the proposed zoning ordinance.

Most outspoken among the opponents to zoning present at the meeting was James Schenck, former township supervisor, who informed the group he didn't think the township needed zoning. He said he will work against it "because I believe in freedom for the people. Our people don't have to ask for permission from anyone to build a house if they want to."

X-RAYS FOR INMATES: Berrien Sheriff Forrest "Nick" Jewell is guinea pig for Berrien Health Department Director Robert Locey in a practice run with a $900 chest X-ray machine to be operated by sheriff's personnel at county jail, St. Joseph. Jail inmates serving time or committed after arraignment will be X-rayed, have prints screened by Dr. Locey, and referred elsewhere for treatment if suffering from tuberculosis. Those with cancer or heart disease will go on special medical program at the jail. Machine is owned by health department and X-ray plan is expected to be operational in a week. (Staff photo)

Boards Of Review Will Be Meeting Next Week

Boards of review in all local units of government in Berrien county will hold public sessions next week to hear appeals of property assessments for 1969 tax rolls. Most boards will hear property owners on Monday and Tuesday, but in some larger units the boards will meet on additional dates.

In connection with these hearings, County Equalization Director Charles Knapp reminded disabled veterans and senior citizens that applications for homestead tax exemptions must be filed with their local assessing officer before the board of review adjourns. Applications must be submitted annually.

The senior citizen exemption is $2,500 of the state equalized valuation of a homestead. The exemption for disabled veterans has been expanded this year, ranging from $2,500 to $4,500, according to the degree of disability.

The Benton Harbor board of review will sit Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week. Sessions are scheduled from 9 a.m. to 12 Noon and 2 to 5 p.m. on Monday and Tuesday; at 10 a.m. to 12 Noon, 3 to 5 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. on Wednesday, and from 3 to 9 p.m. on Thursday.

In St. Joseph the board of review will hear appeals Monday through Thursday next week. The hours each day will be from 9 a.m. to 12 Noon and 1 to 4 p.m.

Deputy Arrests Niles Motorist

Charles W. Motry, 22, of 1740 East Main street, Niles, was arrested by Berrien county sheriff Deputy Thomas Yops this morning on a charge of driving under the influence of intoxicants. The arrest was made on M-139 south of I-94.

Stolen Car Recovered

A convertible stolen in Kalamazoo was recovered in front of the Sun Bowl tavern, Red Arrow highway, Lincoln township, yesterday by Berrien county sheriff Deputy Eugene Eklund and township officer Murvin Merrill, Sr.

The officers said a woman reported the driver getting into a car driven by another person. She said she went to turn the engine off in the abandoned car, but found no keys in the ignition.

Liquor Issue On Eau Claire Ballot

Six Candidates Unopposed For Village Offices

EAU CLAIRE — Eau Claire residents will vote on the sale of liquor by the glass at the annual village election Monday.

Also to be voted on are six candidates, all Democrats who are unopposed. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. in the municipal building.

The candidates include five incumbents. They are Marvin L. LaVanday, village president; Mrs. Mabel Brooks, treasurer; J. Caswell Crowder and Claud D. Street, councilmen; and Kenneth A. Karn, assessor. Robert W. Taylor is unopposed for a third council seat, left vacant by Billy J. Burnham who did not seek re-election.

Village Clerk Mrs. N. Jean Bishop did not file for re-election and the post will have to be filled by a write-in candidate. Mrs. Bishop, who held the post three years, was not a candidate last year, but won in a write-in vote.

Terms of president, clerk, treasurer and assessor are for one year, while councilmen serve two year terms.

Seeks Post Of Clerk At Coloma

MRS. PATRICIA JOHNSON

COLOMA — Mrs. Patricia Johnson of 147 West street announced today she has filed nominating petitions as a candidate for city clerk in the April 7 election.

She is the first candidate to file for clerk. Mrs. Florence Davis has announced she will not seek re-election as clerk but will retain her position as city bookkeeper.

Mrs. Johnson has lived in Coloma for 10 years and in Berrien county all her life. She was graduated from Benton Harbor high school and has been a bookkeeper for the Community Finance Co. of Benton Harbor for nine years.

A bookkeeper for 15 years, Mrs. Johnson said she believes her background provides her for the necessary experience for the city clerk's job.

Mrs. Johnson is the mother of four children, Nancy, Charlene and Larry who attend Coloma junior and senior high schools, and Curtis, a senior at Berrien Springs.

Astronauts Test Pressure Suits

Illness Cancels Walk In Space

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Apollo 9 astronauts plan to open the hatches of their two orbiting craft today and brave the vacuum of outer space in pressure suits. But there will be no space walk.

Air Force Col. James A. McDivitt, in the lunar landing ferry (LEM) and David R. Scott, in the command module, are to be plugged into the support systems of their respective ships.

Rookie astronaut Russell L. Schweickart wears a life-sustaining back pack which he had been scheduled to use in a two-hour space walk today. The space walk was called off by McDivitt, the Apollo 9 commander, after Schweickart became ill.

UPSET STOMACH Schweickart had two vomiting attacks early Wednesday. He later skipped lunch and said he did not feel up to par.

The rookie spaceman had planned to leave the hatch of the lunar module and move hand-over-hand on railings to enter the hatch of the command module, joining Scott. After a brief rest, he was to have rejoined McDivitt in the still-attached LEM.

Schweickart's suit and back pack are identical to those astronauts will wear on the moon, and officials want to test them on Apollo 9 before committing men to a lunar landing.

Christopher C. Kraft Jr., director of flight operations, said the space walk was not essential to a moon landing.

The purpose of assigning it to Schweickart was to demonstrate that man can transfer from the LEM to the command ship in case of an emergency.

Kraft said it was more important to have the crew rested for a critical rendezvous and docking Friday.

McDivitt and Schweickart are to separate the LEM, fly 109 miles away and then seek out Scott in the command ship. They will thus maneuver like the two astronauts who will launch themselves from the moon to rejoin the mother ship in lunar orbit.

NAUSEA PUZZLING Doctors were puzzled over Schweickart's nausea. He is an experienced pilot. But he said he had a history of a nervous stomach and that he had taken motion sickness pills before and after the launching.

Dr. Charles A. Berry, chief astronaut physician, prescribed other pills to quiet his intestinal tract. Berry said there would be a danger of suffocation if Schweickart became ill and vomited in his pressure suit during a space walk.

Despite the illness, Schweickart was able to perform complex tasks in the LEM for more than seven hours Wednesday.

Officials reported all systems in the spider-like craft functioned perfectly, including a six-minute firing of the engine designed to brake a later LEM to a lunar landing.

As the astronauts bedded down Wednesday night, ground control radioed congratulations on their checkout of the LEM.

"Everybody down here is happy with the way the day has gone and wants to congratulate you for an outstanding job," the message read.

Sickness In Space Not Unusual

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Russell L. Schweickart is the fourth man to get sick to his stomach in space. And no one yet knows why. Air Force Col. Frank Borman got an upset stomach and vomited on the way to the moon in Apollo 8.

On Gemini 3 Col. David R. Scott and civilian Neil Armstrong suffered from nausea. When rookie astronaut Schweickart became ill Wednesday, once in the command ship and once in the moon cab, doctors were faced by the same diagnostic puzzle. Was it some virus? Was it only motion sickness?

Schweickart, an experienced pilot, has had motion sickness before, not unlike other pilots. He's been both air sick and seasick. He took motion sickness pills both before and after the Apollo 9 blast-off.

Now, on doctor's orders, he's taking them again.

Schweickart's illness is the only one so far that has caused a radical change in flight plan. His spacewalk was canceled, both because he was not up to the strenuous work involved, and because there was the danger that if he should become nauseated in the closed environment of his spacesuit, he might unbalance and choke on vomit.

SDS Finds Few Recruits In Nation's High Schools

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Students for a Democratic Society is trying to recruit converts to its doctrine of social revolution among high school pupils, but the evidence indicates that the youngsters aren't digging the message.

A nationwide survey by The Associated Press showed the SDS, a leading force in many major disruptions of college campuses, has become active in only a handful of high schools and that, so far, its impact has been minimal.

One spokesman for SDS, Tom Raredon, a student at Ohio State University, denied that the organization is even attempting to influence high school pupils, and said it has no plans to do so.

But a fellow member, Tom Buttny of the University of Colorado, insisted that SDS is trying to move into the high schools, and reports from across the country tend to bear him out.

Cities as widespread as Los Angeles, Denver, Boston and Columbus, Ohio, report overt activity by the SDS on high school campuses. At the same time, authorities in Atlanta, Philadelphia, Kansas City, Minneapolis, Des Moines, Chicago and Milwaukee say the militant leftist organization hasn't surfaced among the high school crowd.

In Los Angeles, Police Chief Tom Reddin said his department has discovered a link between SDS and the Peking-oriented Progressive Labor Party which, he says, has enlisted support among the students of Fremont High School.

Reddin had said in a report made public last December that SDS had established 10 chapters in Los Angeles high schools. School officials denied it.

Nonetheless, Mayor Sam Yorty has requested a federal investigation into what he calls the central role played by SDS in some recent high school disturbances in Los Angeles.

Gov. Ronald Reagan of California also has blamed "outside agitators," including the SDS, for high school protests.

Reagan said SDS, along with the Black Students Union and the Third World Liberation Front, "think they can create more anarchy and chaos if they get to the younger people."

Dr. Ralph Richardson, a member of the Los Angeles Board of Education, said SDS activity on high school campuses has been "sporadic." The board, he said, is "concerned and properly so" about the SDS but does not take the position that it constitutes an immediate danger.

School officials in Denver said

SDS had set up chapters in some high schools, but that the number of students involved was small.

DENVER OUTBREAKS SDS members from the University of Colorado and the University of Denver took part in recent attempts to demonstrate at two Denver high schools.

At one school, students fought with SDS representatives and tore up their leaflets. Police said.

Buttny, the SDS leader at the University of Colorado, said his organization erred in trying to impose itself on the high school students instead of working with them. "This never works," he said.

The SDS appears to be making some attempt to win high school pupils in the Boston area. A spokesman for the City School Department, Ronald Johnson, said "a number of suspicious looking types have been attending recent meetings of the school committee and taking notes." They wore "the usual SDS costumes—hippie-type clothing," he said.

Johnson also claimed that recent disturbances in Boston high schools appeared to reflect outside influences. He did not elaborate.

City Commission Listens To Teens

CORONA, Calif. (AP) — It's been two months now since teen-age students were made nonvoting members of city commissions, and both the students and commissioners agreed today it's worked out well.

John Collins, chairman of the planning commission, says he'd like to see his "advisers" become regular voting members after a bit more seasoning. "We need the viewpoint of the younger groups," he said.

Max James, chairman of the Human Relations Commission, says he's elated over the development. "The young people sparked our last meeting and many commissioners felt the kids made the meeting."

Sadie Figueroa, a student assigned to the Human Relations Commission, says she "thought it would be only sitting around and talking about nothing interesting, but we get to voice our opinions—we are heard not only seen."

Says Linda Warren, student on the Library Board: "I'm glad I'm on the board. It's so interesting."

Richard Mejia, student on the planning commission, says "When you first start out you are all confused. I've been reading up on it, trying to understand what is happening at the meetings."

Betty Cunliff, student on the Park-Recreation Commission, says "I think teen-agers should have been added to this commission long ago, because Corona is lacking in providing recreation for teen-agers."

Corona is a city of about 15,000 in Southern California. The idea of student commissioners was established on a six-

... saw a triumphant Herbert Hoover become President after defeating Al Smith... and a new triumph in telephone design made its debut on the American scene. The desk phone, first introduced in 1925, now appeared in a new, smaller and more tasteful design. People loved the new phone in 1928 because it looked good and did so many necessary things... like enabling them to dial. Today we still enjoy good-looking, hard-working phones, and we use ours to take Classified Ads from thousands of Southwestern Michigan residents.
